

Take Action to Change the Future of Parkinson's

The Parkinson's Foundation works to advance public policies that make life better for people living with Parkinson's disease. By advocating for change at the federal and state levels, we can improve care and support research today while helping to change the trajectory of Parkinson's in the future.

The Parkinson's Foundation focuses on federal and state policies that:

- ▶ Increase funding for research to develop better treatments and ultimately a cure
- ▶ Strengthen care systems so people can get the care and support they need
- ▶ Promote prevention strategies, including efforts to reduce exposure to environmental risks tied to Parkinson's
- ▶ Expand access to high-quality education tools and resources

Take Action

Visit Policy.Parkinson.org to contact your representatives and ask them to support these priorities through our Advocacy Center – or scan the QR code.

Ready to do more?

Contact the Parkinson's Foundation Policy Team at Policy@Parkinson.org to learn other ways to take action, such as:

- ▶ Meeting with your elected officials and their staff
- ▶ Sharing your story
- ▶ Participating in local advocacy events